LCWR Books 2020: "Our Journey to the Borders and Beyond"

This is an important edition that looks at the call to religious in these chaotic and rapidly changing times. Writers in this issue explore the kind of presence religious are invited to embody for the sake of the world. How do we live with authenticity, integrity, and depth this spiritual journey that takes us to the borders of what we have known and compels us to move beyond? What does the world - in all its changing dimensions - most need for us to be? A highlight of this issue is an interview with the poet, David Whyte. In addition, the issue features an array of interesting articles that probe the spiritual journey and what the mission of religious life might mean as we move into a future that we now know will be very different from the past.
